Greg is Co-Founder and CEO of Nantero, pioneering firm in the field of nanotechnology, world leader in carbon nanotube electronics, and developer of a new carbon-nanotube-based memory (NRAM). Having raised more than $120M from investors such as Dell, Cisco, CRV, and DFJ, Nantero's memory is faster, cheaper, and more power-efficient than DRAM. Nantero aims to disrupt the $100B+/year market for memory, with Fujitsu planning to be first to enter mass production in 2019. After that, you can expect to see NRAM in markets ranging from consumer electronics and enterprise systems to mobile devices and AI.
